

2008–2009 Call for Applications

Application Deadline

October 3, 2008

Robert Wood Johnson Foundation

Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Health & Society Scholars

Purpose

The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Health & Society Scholars program is designed to build the nation's capacity for research, leadership and policy change to address the multiple determinants of population health. The program is based on the principle that progress in the field of population health depends upon multidisciplinary collaboration and exchange. Its goal is to improve health by training scholars to:

- investigate rigorously the connections among biological, genetic, behavioral, environmental, economic and social determinants of health; and
- develop, evaluate and disseminate knowledge and interventions that integrate and act on these determinants to improve health.

The program is intended to produce leaders who will change the questions asked, the methods employed to analyze problems, and the range of solutions to reduce population health disparities and improve the health of all Americans.

Eligibility Criteria

To be eligible, scholars must:

- have completed doctoral training by the time of entry into the program (August or September 2009) in one of a variety of fields including, but not limited to, the behavioral and social sciences, the biological and natural sciences, health professions, public policy, public health, history, demography, environmental sciences, urban planning, engineering and ethics;
- have significant research experience;
- clearly connect their research interests to substantive population health concerns; and
- be citizens or permanent residents of the United States or its territories.

Selection Criteria

The following criteria will be considered in evaluating applicants:

- Potential to contribute creatively to the field of population health.
- Demonstrated openness to new ideas.
- Demonstrated critical thinking skills.
- An active interest in interdisciplinary collaboration.
- Commitment to a career consistent with the program's purpose and goals.
- Quality of past research.
- Leadership potential.
- Ability to take advantage of this program's opportunities.
- Recommendations by faculty and other individuals with whom the applicant has studied or worked.
